

Introduction for Roni Sasaki (Pronounced as Ronnie Sa-saw-ki)

Our speaker today is Roni Sasaki. The first thing you may notice about Roni is that she walks with a hitch in her giddy-up. A self proclaimed “expert” at falling, she will not fall today - hopefully. She’s got this. In fact, she chased her biggest dream and now she inspires audiences of all ages to do the same.

A graduate of Portland State University, Roni currently owns and manages EnviroMet, an industrial environmental supply company that she started 24 years ago. She is also the currently President of the Women Entrepreneurs Organization.

Roni has been speaking to groups since she was 16 years old and recently published her first book, “From The Start.” She is the host of the podcast, “A Leg Up On Life.”

Her message of persistence and resilience will push you to succeed. She will inspire you to embrace your own unique characteristics that may ultimately become your greatness.

Please welcome Roni Sasaki.
